

08/06/2009 Choir Notices

Rehearsal 10 of 13

(a bit sparse this week, as I'm totally out of the loop)

Town Hall Teas

100 brownie points are awarded to BETTY HEBDITCH for volunteering to organise the Teas. What a star she is. Please give Betty every assistance and leap forward to sign up for cake-baking and/or kitchen duty.

Concert Day

Anne Shipton (Concert Manager) needs to know numbers for the concert, so please ensure that you have indicated on the registers whether you are singing or not. Your section reps will be chasing you for this.

Very soon, Lisa (Concert Secretary) will be asking for family/friends who are willing to act as stewards, bar staff, etc. It would be nice if you were prepared with names to offer.

Sell, sell, sell

As always, we live or die by the number of tickets we sell in advance. Remember you can charge £1 less for the full price tickets (not for the Under 16s!) if you sell before the day. It is a light concert programme, and should be a very pleasant evening's entertainment, so those who don't like 'heavy' performances should be persuaded to come along.

Be bold, and sell.

Bristol Sings!

Well, 'Bristol Sang' would be more accurate. The Bristol CS organised a big sing of Verdi Requiem to celebrate the refurbishment of the Colston Hall (which wasn't actually completed – no surprise there) and in support of two charities – BRACE and the Julian Trust. I think there were seven Tyndalers there last Saturday, including Ian, and it was a grand day indeed. For this alto, it was a dream come true to belt out the Dies Irae with a massive chorus (600?) and the full forces of the Bristol Concert Orchestra. Cracking day out, and with such lovely people. Now THAT'S what I call community singing.

The less said about the last fugue, the better. I couldn't even keep up when I was miming.

Tyndale's Come and Sing

The Verdi £15 ticket price didn't include so much as a cup of tea. You'll get a MUCH BETTER DEAL at our 'Jolly Good Haydn' on 27 September. I'll have to make sure we have enough numbers from within the choir to proceed, so there will be a sign-up list next week. Please check your diaries and see if you are able to commit to the event. (No need to pay yet.)
