The Autumn Quiz

If you haven't already bought a quiz sheet, penned by our brilliant accompanist James, please do so from the sales table. As well as passing a pleasant hour (or so) and exercising the little grey cells, you might even learn something as you go!

We'll have your answers in on November 2 and announce the winner on November 9. Don't expect a grand prize... the kudos and admiring glances from the choir should suffice.

Sits. Vac.

Treasurer (2010)
Concert Secretary (2010)
Publicity (2010)

No c.v. required. Applicants almost guaranteed a successful interview. All positions require goodwill, public-spiritedness, loyalty and diligence.

A Very Good Egg

We all owe a large 'thank you' to Marion Miller, who has stepped up to cover for Anne Shipton as Concert Manager at the November concert. Please ensure that you all help Marion however you can; especially the men when it comes to dealing with the staging.

Bach Ticket Sales

To combat the Handel competition, sell as you have never sold before. Remember that you can charge £9 for the adult tickets as long as you have the money before the concert. No discount on the £2 tickets for under 16s!

In your sales pitch, you can say that our tickets are half the price (literally), and make sure you mention our professional orchestra and soloists, and the hard work we as a local choir have put in. Do note on the sales sheet on the noticeboard how many tickets you have sold as we go along - it will help us track progress.

Should you need any more than your allocation of 4 tickets, just ask. We'll knit more.

Please ensure that ALL envelopes, with money (cash or cheque) and any unsold tickets enclosed are returned to JENNI CULVERWELL (alto) no later than the last Monday rehearsal before the concert.

Advertisers for the concert programme

If you know anyone who would like to take an advertising space in the concert programme, please liaise with Dick Skinner.

Adverts should be black/white, with no great expanses of solid ink (otherwise the duplicating machine will gum up the pages).

We like to hand out the programmes free of charge, and the advertisements help us do this by paying for the duplication/paper costs. Thank you!

And finally...

Watching a programme the other evening about the Coventry Blitz, I noted that we shall be singing our concert on its 69th anniversary.

I don't quite know what to make of that – but just thought I'd mention it.

They made no mention of the incendiary which hit my Gran's house. Fancy that.
